ASSISTANT CHIEF MEDICAL EXAMINER EASTERN REGION

Salary Range:
Negotiable to $290,000

ABOUT THE ASSISTANT CHIEF MEDICAL EXAMINER POSITION

The Virginia Office of the Chief Medical Examiner is seeking an Assistant Chief Medical Examiner to join the staff of three current forensic pathologists for the OCME Eastern District, based out of Norfolk, that covers the eastern region of the state of Virginia. The successful candidate will conduct postmortem exams, approximately 250 medicolegal autopsies per year, consultations with interested parties, court testimony, supervision of staff, and other administrative oversight duties. This position advises/supervises local medical examiners as part of a 78-year-old statewide medical examiner system. Educational responsibilities include the instruction of forensic pathology fellows, medical students, public safety officers, and others. The pathologist will participate in educational, training and research activities, and participate on committees. This role offers a great work-life balance with Sundays off, holiday rotation, and no on scene requirements except in emergency situations. This role requires occasional overnight travel. The office does not currently process cases on Saturdays.

EXPERIENCE REQUIREMENTS: Experience performing forensic autopsies and postmortem examinations, completion of approved training program in forensic pathology (at least one year of experience), medical licensure in Virginia (or obtainable upon employment), Board Certification or eligibility in anatomic and forensic pathology required with American Board of Pathology (or certification must be achieved within 2 years of employment), and a valid driver's license.

OCME VISION

The overall vision of the OCME is to be the best medical examiner system possible. The following missions form the core of OCME staff members' efforts in accomplishing this goal:

- › Conduct medicolegal death investigations.
- › Perform autopsies to certify cause and manner of death.
- › Provide public service to citizens and professional colleagues throughout the Commonwealth.
- › Educate peers and professionals on subjects related to death investigation.
- › Reduce violent death by conducting surveillance and fatality review.
- › Provide support and technical assistance to local fatality review teams.
- › Administer the State Anatomical Program.

When an autopsy is required, it is conducted in one of four district offices: Manassas, Norfolk, Richmond, or Roanoke. Each district is staffed by board certified forensic pathologists, death investigators, administrative, and morgue personnel. Virginia's medical examiners and forensic pathologists are committed to public safety and to public health. They advance public health through their investigations of deaths that present a hazard to Virginia's citizens, such as emerging infections and bioterrorism. Public health is also supported through a well-established surveillance and fatality review program, one of only a few forensic epidemiology units in the nation. The State Child Fatality Review Team, as well as maternal mortality review and intimate partner homicide surveillance projects are all located within the OCME. The Chief Medical Examiner for the Commonwealth of Virginia is Doctor William Gormley.
